

EARLY SPRING

$5.00

HOUSE

GN • ARCHITECTURE • LIFESTYLE

Photos: Ric Marder Imagery

It's not every day that you find a home with a view as grand as this one. Situated in Old Field, Long Island and overlooking Conscience Bay, the entire back of the home is privy to this stunning sight every day. Sunshine, moody clouds or evening skies, it's always magnificent!

Melissa Fenigstein of New Age Interiors in Syosset, is no stranger to this home. She renovated most of the living spaces with the homeowner in 2001. When they were ready to redesign the kitchen, they immediately called Melissa back.

The team at New Age Interiors knew that this kitchen certainly would be the heart-of-the-home and they were ready with ideas. When redesigning the space to incorporate an eating area, the covered porch naturally lent itself to being converted to accommodate cozy, casual dining. Keeping the eating area off to the side meant that nothing would need to live between the kitchen island and the superb view.

Additionally, knowing that this family does a lot of large-scale entertaining, baking and healthy cooking the island had

